Wall Street the More Honest.

[Logansport Phoenix.]

If Wall street can or will give us an honest currency, we can see no objection to it, and it is much more than the reputation it can do. As between the two, Wall street is much the more honest.

A Big Scoop.

[Washington Herald.]

The New York Graphic has scored another beat. A recent issue contained a full description of the death of Caesar, with a thrilling two-page illustration of the same, while the other dailies hadn't had even the bare announcement of it by telegraph. Where were the Associated Press agents?

Please Mention.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Governor Hendricks had something to say in a speech in Illinois, the other day, of the "principles" to which "we" (the Democracy) have "adhered." It would be a happiness to all inquirers after truth to know what those principles are—one of them, for instance.

The Episcopal Convention closed its sessions yesterday.

At Norwood, Massachusetts, yesterday, George Dunham killed his wife and then cut his own throat.

By an explosion of gunpowder at Hounslow, England, yesterday afternoon, four persons were killed.

The colliers who struck in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, have resumed work pending arbitration.

The farmers of Lincolnshire, England, insist on a reduction of three shillings per week in the wages of hands, an extensive lock-out is threatened.

A fire at Jefferson, Texas, Monday night consumed the block occupied by J. C. Calster & Co., Bigler & Whaler and F. A. Goshen. Loss estimated at $20,000; insurance, $40,000. The fire was supposed to be incendiary.

Joseph P. Hamilton, aged 21, who murdered E. W. Hallack, of Mercer county, Missouri, about three years ago, was hanged at Belknap, Harrison county, last Friday. Hamilton made a confession a few days before his execution.

Yesterday, the 80th birthday of William Cullen Bryant, was made the occasion of a gift by his friends of a beautiful vase valued at $500, to be placed in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The vase represents the lessons of his literary, journalistic and political life.

The Mark Lane (English) Express of this week says: The wheat trade is again getting in a fix. The damp atmosphere is probably the cause. Occasionally there has been a shilling rise, but more markets show an equal decline. Wheat remains the worst paid grain grown in this season.

The Chicago Literary Club, of which Robert Collyer is President, and the Rev. Dr. Powers Vice President, and which includes in its membership a large number of literary and scientific men, celebrated, Tuesday night, the 80th anniversary of William Cullen Bryant's birthday by a testimonial banquet.

River men report that on the banks of the Ohio river, from Ironton to Marietta, a distance of 100 miles, the forests are on fire. The smoke is so dense on the Ohio river as to make navigation impossible. The fires in the pine forests in Fairfield county, and also in the swamps of Akron, are still raging fiercely.

The western bound passenger train on the Memphis railroad was derailed at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Hill's lake, eight miles east of Little Rock. The locomotive was turned on its side and the tender was bottomed side up. The baggage car was turned over on its side and the first passenger coach left the rails but did not turn over. The engineer was slightly and the fireman badly scalded. One man was caught by the hand between the tender and the baggage car, and had a miraculous escape. The passengers arrived at Little Rock from the scene of the disaster in the evening.

THE ELECTIONS.

The following is the result of the elections as far as known this morning. Later returns may be found on this page:

Alabama—The Democrats claim certainly five Congressmen—a gain of two. Two negroes were killed and one white man wounded in Mobile.

Arkansas—Returns indefinite. The election was generally quiet and a full vote was polled. Little Rock is Democratic. The Democratic ticket is elected Governor, and James Williams Congressman at large.

Florida—No definite returns.

Georgia—An undivided Democratic Congressional delegation. Felton Independent Democrat beats Dabney, the regular nominee in the Seventh District. Freeman, Republican, will contest the election of Chandler, in the Fifth.

Illinois—Returns indicate the election of the following Republicans: Fourth District, Hurlbut; Fifth, Edwards; Sixth, Henderson; Seventh, Corwin; Eighth, Fort; Ninth, Whiting; Fourteenth, Cannon. Democrats: Tenth, Bagby; Eleventh, Wike; Twelfth, Springer; Thirteenth, Stevenson; Fifteenth, Eden; Sixteenth, Sparks; Seventeenth, Morrison; Eighteenth, Bartlett. In Nineteenth, Anderson, Independent, is probably elected. The Republican State ticket is elected.

Kansas—Not sufficient returns to indicate results.

Kentucky—The election was very quiet and the Democrats probably made a clean sweep of the ten Congressmen. Only three of the present delegation are returned.

Louisiana—Chester B. Darrell the present Congressman from the Third District, is the only Republican elected, and his election is not beyond doubt. Montgomery Democrat is elected Treasurer—the only State officer to be elected.

Maryland—The entire Democratic Congressional ticket is elected with the possible exception of Walsh in the Sixth District.

Massachusetts—The Democratic State ticket is elected, and probably five of the eleven Congressmen, viz: Fifth District, Banks; Sixth, (Butler's) Thompson; seventh, (Cherry) Pectoral Ayer's; eighth, Warren; eleventh, Chapin. The Republican ticket is elected Governor, and his election is not beyond doubt. Montgomery Democrat is elected Treasurer—the only State officer to be elected.

Michigan—The Democrats probably elect three of the nine Congressmen: Williams in the first district, Potter in the fourth and Durand in the sixth. The Republicans carry the State ticket by greatly reduced majorities. The vote is very fair and the new constitution is badly defeated.

Minnesota—The three Republican Congressmen are probably elected, though King in the third is in considerable doubt. Cornell and McMillan, Republicans, are probably elected Supreme Judges.

Missouri—The returns come in slowly, with no definite indications.

Nevada—No satisfactory returns. The principal fight is on the Legislature, which will elect a Senator. Both Senatorial candidates, Williams and Sharon, are Republicans.

New Jersey—Bedle, Democrat, is elected Governor. The Congressional delegation will stand four Democrats: Ross in the Third District, Cutler in the Fifth, Teese in the Sixth, and Hardenberg in the Seventh; and three Republicans: Shattuck in the First, Dobbins in the Second, and Place in the Fourth.

New York—The Democratic majority will be very large, probably not less than 40,000. The Democrats claim two-thirds of the Congressmen and twelve majority in the Assembly. The following Republican Congressmen are elected: Seventeenth district, Townsend; nineteenth, Wheeler; twentieth, Hartorn; twenty-second, Bagley; twenty-fifth, Leavenworth; twenty-eighth, Platt; thirtieth, Dwyer. The following Democrats are elected: First District, Metcalf; second, Schumaker; third, Chittenden; fourth, Bliss; fifth, Meade; sixth, Cox; seventh, Ely; eighth, Ward; ninth, Schell for the vacancy of Wood for full term; tenth, Hewett; eleventh, Willis; twelfth, Odell; thirteenth, Whitehouse; fourteenth, Beebe; fifteenth, Bagley; twenty-third, Lord; twenty-ninth, Walker. The remaining districts are doubtful or not heard from.

Pennsylvania—The returns are meagre and the result uncertain except that the Republican State ticket is elected by a small majority. Hopkins, Democrat, is elected over Negley in the Twenty-second District; Bayne, Republican, in the Twenty-third; Wallace, Republican, in the Twenty-fourth, and White, Republican, in the Twenty-fifth.

Rhode Island—A conspicuous Republican victory. Both Congressmen are elected.

South Carolina—The result of the State ticket is in doubt. Both candidates for Lieutenant Governor are colored. The Democrats claim Mackey in the second district, McGowan in the third, and Kershaw in the fourth. Rainey, the present colored Republican incumbent, is probably elected in the first. His opponent is also colored. Smalls, colored Republican, is elected in the fifth.

Tennessee—The Democrats report a considerable gain, the majority being probably 25,000. The First and Second Districts, now represented by Roderick Butler and Thornburgh, are in doubt. The rest goes Democratic. The delegation is: Third District, Bibb; fourth, Head; fifth, Bright; sixth, House; seventh, Whitborne; eighth, Atkins; ninth, Caldwell; tenth, Young.

Texas—The Democrats sweep the State, electing the entire Congressional ticket.

Vermont—The only election pending was that of a successor to the Carpenter, who failed to elect at the September election. Dudley C. Denison, Republican, beats Poland out of sight.

Virginia—The Democrats gain one Congressman—The delegation will stand Democrats: Third district, Walcott; Sixth, Tucker; Seventh, Harris; Eighth, Hunton; Ninth, Terry, Republican; First District, Sener; Fourth, Stowell; Fifth, Thomas. In the Second the result is doubtful.

Wisconsin—The result in the Legislature, which is to elect a successor to the Carpenter, is very close. In the Congressional delegation the Democrats claim a gain of one. It will stand, Democrats, Lynde in the fourth, Burchard in the fifth, and perhaps Bouck in the sixth. Republican: First district, Williams; second, Caswell; third, Magoun; seventh, Rusk; eighth, McMill.

It looks like a tidal wave.

SEVERAL elections were held yesterday.

The lane has been a long one, but it has turned.

THE Republicans will begin to think about unloading.

ONE ray of light remains. Rhode Island is still Republican.

THERE will be a suspension of third term talk for a week or two.

LAST of all came Satan. And even Massachusetts cuffs Grantism.

PATENT medicine Ayer was too big a dose for Massachusetts to swallow.

WILL the Cincinnati Enquirer claim Butler's defeat as an inflation victory?

THIS sort of thing is what was confidently expected two years ago, and didn't come.

THE Democrats will have a majority in the next House, and will have to define a policy.

MASSACHUSETTS elects a Democratic Governor. Why didn't John Quincy Adams keep on running?

WHAT would Oakes Ames think if he was alive? He could put his hand on his heart and remark: "Behold the ruin I have wrought."

THERE will be such a rush of jobs upon Congress this winter as was never known before. The change in the majority may make no essential difference in the practice, but a majority of the schemers will not care to wait and see.

GEN. FARNSWORTH, of Illinois, who has been running as an Independent candidate for Congress against Hurlbut, a notorious corruptionist, has been defeated. Half the sting will be taken out, however, by the reflection that if he had been elected, his old enemy, Butler, could not have met him in Congress. Mr. Foster, of Ohio, whom "old Cockey" tried to defeat, must feel a grain of satisfaction over the drubbing of his enemy, mingled probably with some regret that he will only have this winter in which to flay him.

THE most gratifying news to-day is that the Conservatives have carried Louisiana. This is gratifying, not only because it defeats as corrupt a gang of scoundrels as ever cursed a State, but because it shows a break in the negro vote. Louisiana is so constituted that the Conservatives could not carry the State without getting a portion of the negro vote, and it is certain that they did. The greatest blessing the South could receive would be the splitting of the colored vote. It would benefit all classes, would restore peace in every section, would give the intelligence and virtue of a community the charge of governing it, and would do more to destroy race antagonisms and elevate the negro, than any other thing.

THE way to reach voters is through their interests. When all is smooth sailing and prosperity, men are contented with their political surroundings and are averse to change. When hard times come, however, they lay them at the door of the ruling party and are ready to take sides against it. This has been the case always, and never more justly than at present. The policy of the ruling party has been directly opposed to the permanent prosperity of the country. Its paper money, its protection, its upholding of monopolies, and its constant interference with business and violation of the plainest principles of economy, have produced the present condition of affairs. A party is not always to blame for hard times, but this is a case which admits of no doubt. The people though striking blindly at the evil have hit it squarely. Whether they will gain anything by it, whether a change in rulers will make a change in policy and tend to throwing off the great burdens that are smothering the industrial interests of the country, remains to be seen. There is room to doubt whether the Democracy can enunciate a distinct policy and follow it up, instead of imitating the course marked out by their predecessors, but there is no room to doubt the desire of the people to give them a trial. This great change is strictly in the line of precedent, and it may almost be laid down as a rule that financial convulsions are bound to be followed by a change of rulers. It was so after the panic of 1837 when Harrison swept the country, and so again in 1857 when the Republicans came into power.

THE Essex statesman, the redoubtable Benjamin F. Butler, is beaten in his own district, which he carried in his pocket so easily. At last retribution is coming, and Butler's pernicious influence is abating. The salary-grabber, the repudiationist, the "practical man" who was the embodiment of Grantism, and who made politics a game for the sole benefit of those who played it, has been repudiated by the people who upheld him so long. His defeat is significant indeed. It indicates in a nutshell the causes of the overwhelming defeats received yesterday all along the administration line, and it presages the dawn of a brighter day. It shows very thoroughly that the day has gone by in which the raw head and bloody bones of the war could be used to drive voters into the support of a party. Butler's own argument that his defeat would be "received with acclamation by all the rebels and traitors, the sneaking sympathizers and enemies of the government," has fallen lifeless on the ears of the people. They were not to be deceived by this sort of talk any longer. Fast differences might be worth considering if they were not overborne by present evils. Loyalty in the past was a very good thing, but it would not compensate for corruption in the present. Mr. Butler will find that a very large wing of the Republican party will be rejoiced at his defeat. He has represented the worst elements in that party, which have been controlling it and which have made it a stench in the nostrils of decent men. Wherever corruption or fraud called for a defender, up rose Benjamin F. Butler. It is to him and men of his kind that the Republican party can return thanks for its stinging defeat of yesterday.

THE returns of the elections yesterday create the wildest enthusiasm and joy in the breasts of steadfast Democrats, who have waited with tears and groanings through toil and affliction these weary years for the coming of the Lord. Among Republicans accustomed to victories and confident that the public sentiment would never change, they arouse corresponding depression and desponding belief that the country has gone to ruin. The state of the public mind as indicated goes as far in opposition as it did two years ago in support. The huge majorities that snowed under the Greeley movement have melted away. Like the great victories won in the seventeenth century by the Highlanders under Montrose and Dundee for the Stuarts, the overwhelming success of the Republicans two years ago has produced as overwhelming a defeat. The Highlanders, puffed over victory, quarreled and raged among themselves, and their formidable armies went to pieces. The Republicans, no less puffed up and confident that they owned the people in fee simple, gave full sweep to their own ambition and self-seeking, and cared nothing apparently for the good government of the country. The influence that could be broken down in 1872 grew in spite of its defeat, and has in 1874 given a taste of its strength which is calculated to destroy the impression that any one party can take a permanent lease on the country and do as it pleases. Despite the absence of purely national issues in the campaign, the bent of public sentiment is plain. There must be reform, not only in all the branches of the Government, but in all its lines of policy. The people may not know exactly what they want, or just how to get at it, but that they are determined to have a change, admits of no question. Chaos is becoming beautifully confused, and the prospect of evolving order from it is brightening.

THE Evansville Courier is about to start an evening paper to break down the Herald, a lively journal which has met with unusual success and has an uncommonly promising future before it. The Courier will make a great mistake if it does this, as experience will soon teach it. There is no antagonism between a morning and afternoon paper. Their fields are essentially distinct, and one can not trench upon that of the other. The success of the Herald has not taken a dollar away from the Courier or Journal of Evansville, but on the contrary has probably made money for them. The more successful newspapers there are in a city, the better it is for all of them. When the field is crowded, however, and none of them, are equal to the demands of the place, then there may be room for weeding, but no flourishing paper was yet injured by the prosperity of another. The Courier will find, as we say, that the fields are entirely distinct, and that no establishment can safely cultivate both. It is beyond the resources of any office to issue two good newspapers a day, without incurring a cost greatly disproportionate to the receipts. The Journal here tried it, and failed, but it was not until sound business management took control that it admitted the fact. The Courier will have the same experience, and if it is wise it will make the very best paper it can in the morning and not waste energy, time and money on an afternoon edition. That is not the profitable place to put them. And even if it was it is doubtful if success would follow in this instance. The Herald has taken a healthy grip and this thing of breaking down newspapers is not so easy as some people think. The Courier will find a greater profit in helping the Herald along and raising the uses and value of journalism in Evansville. Mr. Terry, who is a young man tolerably well between the eyes, ought to know this.

"APPROPRIQUES AN END."

Hudibras invents this lofty way of saying "winding up," and the Church of England illustrates it. Between the debilitating effects of the High and Low church schism on itself and the repulsive effect on everybody else, and the growing obviousness of the injustice of taxing all forms of religion for the maintenance of one enhanced by the folly of making the creed and ceremonies matters of legislative provision, this venerable monstrosity, snatched from the Pope by Henry VIII and retaining little life except what is derived from its wealth, is hastening to an unlamented and unhonored grave. It has outlived by a century the requirements of the people, and by a full half century the respect of those who dissent from it if not the prejudices of those who adhere to it. The dissenters' outnumber its members and the pulpits of the sectaries furnish the only vital and attractive preaching heard in the United Kingdom, or heard of out of it. Huge incomes to a few dignitaries, and something little better than long starvation to the ninety-nine hundredths who do all the real church work, the money in the thing that does little good and that could be taken out and used to so much better advantage, are fast rubbing out the influence of tradition and the veneration for what is venerable only in its age. The disestablishment of the Irish church was claimed by the churchmen of England to be but a preliminary step to an attack on the decrepit pet of the government at home, and the reform of the Scotch church, which puts the appointments of livings in the hands of those to whom the minister is to serve instead of some twopenny "laird," is well calculated to deepen the fear. Both are long strides away from the unreasoning veneration which has so long maintained "an old man of the sea" on both church and State, in the shape of an establishment compounded equally of political sentiment and religious forms.

That these steps have carried popular feeling well ahead towards the point of disestablishing the church, and leaving its clergyman to live by the contributions of their parishioners or go at something they are better fitted for, is evident enough, in the defeat of Mr. Miall's motion in Parliament, some years ago, to investigate the amount, character and uses of church property. It was felt that the church could bear no such exposure. It trembles now under the revelations unofficially made of the monstrous salaries of pampered bishops who do little but sit in the House of Lords, and the wretched pittance of the real workers, the little parish preachers and the curates who are paid out of some bag end of a pluralist's half dozen livings for doing all his labor. Let these facts be disclosed officially and fully by a Parliamentary commission, and pile them upon the contempt engendered by the Catholic schism, and the repugnance of all rational men to pay for the support of another man's religion after paying above for his own, and the church will fall under the weight. Already Liberals are declaring in well studied, and well received publications, that their plain course to power is to strike straight at the Establishment and destroy it. This is the language of Mr. Chamberlain in the Fortnightly Review, and it is the talk of thousands who form their opinions in social meetings and wayside conversations as they go from mills and mines to their homes. It will be a slow work. Reforms of any magnitude or real value, unless they are made by violence, are always slow. But the day that sees the Liberal party of Great Britain declare for the disestablishment of the church of England will see the beginning of the end. The generation that sees the first blow will live to see the last one that shall not leave one stone of the old and abused edifice upon another. We don't say that the church has not done much good, or that it has not much good in it now, but that the good is, and has for a hundred years, been overbalanced by the evil.

Public Men and Money.

(George Alfred Townsend.)

No true public man is ever rich, except by inheritance. Disraeli and Addison married their wives and beer; Gladstone derived his Pitt left his debts to his country, and expired of bitter bereavement. Where are they all? A publisher once asked me to write up for the Homes of Great Men; and it was easy to say that the foxes had homes,—vide Simon Cameron, and the birds of the air had nests; but the real, inborn public man was generally correlated to a mortgage.

The Common Interest of Nations.

Our hard times have reached China. In that country the demand for silk worm eggs is so much smaller than usual, that there is great distress throughout the country. So it one's resources are shortened on this side of the world his numerous daughters buy fewer silks and the manufacturer makes fewer calls for his raw material, and so it goes from point to point, and the last ripple of our panic is felt, perhaps, in the middle of the Chinese Empire.

A Terrible Thing.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

A Democratic victory means free trade. Free trade means foreign competition.—(Pittsburg Commercial.)

What a terrible thing it would be if by means of foreign competition a suit of clothes which now cost a man forty dollars on account of the tariff could be bought for twenty dollars; or all the materials of iron fabrication should be fifty per cent less than they are now in price. That is all there is of it.

Footie Caterwaul.
(Washington Capital.)
If a cat doth meet a cat on a garden wall,
And if a cat doth greet a cat, oh, why need they both squall?
Every toady has his tabby waiting on the wall,
And yet he welcomes her approach by an unceremonious yell.
Why don't he sit and sweetly smile, and not stand there and howl?
And lift his precious back up high, and show his teeth and maw,
As if there were more than love that made a fellow groan?

Who Shall Judge?
The following poem was written by Major Harry Larkins a short time before he was shot dead by Edward J. Maybridge, at Calistoga, Cal., on the 18th ult.

How do we know what hearts have vilest sin,
How do we know?
Many like seculchers are foul within,
Whose outward garb is spotless as the snow,
And many may be pure we think not so.
How near to God the souls of such have been,
What mercy secret penitence may win,
How do we know?

How can we tell who have sinned more than we,
How can we tell?
We think our brothers walk guiltily,
Judging him in self righteousness! Ah, well,
Perhaps had we been driven through the hell
Of temptations, we might be Less upright in our daily walk than he—
How can we tell?

Dare we condemn what others do?
Dare we condemn?
Their strength is small, their trials are not few,
The tide of wrong is difficult to stem,
And if to us more clearly than to them
Is given knowledge of the good and true,
More do they need our help and pity too!
Dare we condemn?

God help us all, and lead us day by day!
God help us all!
We cannot walk alone the perfect way,
Evil allures us, tempt us and we fall!
We are but human, and our power is small;
Not one of us may boast, and not a day
Rolls o'er our heads, but each hath need to say
God help us!

The Element in the Senatorial Contest

(Chicago Journal.)

Political demagogues and professional office-seekers who imagine that the money question can be got rid of without letting it be made the grand question of political division among the people, will sooner or later discover their mistake. In Indiana, the party managers of the disunited and bad-smelling old Bourbon labels are just beginning to discover that their supposed victory in the October election, instead of being the determination of a contest, was but the initiation of the real contest, which they tried so hard to avoid, but upon the threshold of which they now find themselves placed. They have gained the Legislature, as the old party phrase is; that is to say, they have elected to that body a majority of persons who consented to be labeled with the barbaric word "Democrats." But now they are brought face to face with the fact that the label conveyed no coherent indication of the kind or quality of things contained in the package. Upon examination, the contents turn out to be a miscellaneous assortment of political opposites, antagonisms, irresponsibilities, and inconsistencies. There are hard-money men, rag-money demagogues, repudiationists, anti-repudiationists, liberals, Bourbons, (that splat African with two g's), free-traders, trade-obstructionists, protection-pirates, paternalists, individual-rights men, pro-slaveryites, anti-slaveryites, and the Lord only knows what else, mixed together in chaotic confusion under the same senseless old party label. Between the first two of these irreconcilable political opposites, the contest which the demagogues have so dishonestly sought to avoid, is now inevitable.

Thus into the senatorial contest is forced this political issue which most vitally concerns the nation. Thus is sounded the opening note of the unavoidable conflict between the economists and the repudiationist "Democracy," which the demagogue spoils-hunters are everywhere trying to avoid. It can not be avoided. The contest must come, and will come, and the demagogues who seek to avoid it will be the first to fall, the victims of their own self-seeking expediency. That, in Indiana, the contest will be one of the most hotly contested political battles of the West, there is no reason to doubt. It will be more than that. It will be the only honest political contest that has been made in Indiana, or the West, in many years; the only contest made on a real political issue, on any basis of principle, or on any ground in which any but office-seeking demagogues have been concerned. If it will be the only contest that has been made at the West since the pre-slavery rebellion, in which the contestants arrayed themselves on opposite sides the dividing line between opposite political doctrines, systems, or beliefs. It will therefore be the first political contest in the West (save in a few isolated localities) exhibiting to the country a contest on the vital political issue of the time.

The Medical Row.

There is a breeze among the Indianapolis old school physicians, one part representing the College of Physicians and the other the Indiana Medical College, and this breeze, or rather storm, is blowing, and it has spread to the Indianapolis Academy of Medicine. The time coming for an election of officers for this institution, last week Dr. J. K. Bigelow, President, issued a call to meet at Dr. Todd's office, which meeting elected Dr. P. H. Jameson, President, J. M. Kitchen, Vice President, A. Stratford, Secretary, and J. R. Featherston, Treasurer. Dr. Fuller was the Secretary last year, and to this election he excepted, so did other physicians, not present, and an opposition meeting was held last night at the old college, resulting in nothing beyond the appointment of Drs. Cominger, Newcomer, Waterman, Bonisieur, Fuller and Cunningham to restore unanimity between the opposite factions. The opposite side also met and the retiring President, Dr. Bigelow, deplored the dissension which has arisen, and there were short speeches from other gentlemen, all tending to light the calumet of peace, which will probably be smoked in due time with becoming gravity. If it is not—The News will draw the veil.

LABOR AND WAGES.

The Union Policy of Restricting Produce.

[From the Salt Lake Tribune.]

Labor constitutes the main element of cost, and with high wages an era of high prices results. This is merely a statement of fact; a deficient supply is shown in a high scale of prices, while an abundant market sends down the rates. If men took counsel only of their common sense they would readily understand that the main object of useful industry is to produce abundance to provide enough for the wants of all. Nominal values are a mere accident, intrinsic value and enough of it, is what creates prosperity. The farmer who has a hundred bushels of wheat in his barn quoted at fifty cents a bushel, certainly has more intrinsic value than the man who has fifty bushels at one dollar a bushel, although rated at one dollar per bushel. Our great want is enough of everything, and if nominal values suffer by this general plenty the scale of prices can readily be accommodated to the altered condition of the market.

But through the pernicious influence of the protectionist school of philosophers, our workmen are infected with the mania for high prices. Notwithstanding to inquire into the thing, their clamorous demand is always for higher wages. Suppose this demand is universally conceded, and every mechanic should be paid five dollars for a day of eight hours. Would this benefit the condition? Economic law shows to a demonstration that it could not. Labor being the principal element of cost, high wages cause high prices. The workman receives an enhanced scale of remuneration for his labor, but the cost of living is enhanced at a greater rate. The tendency of expense always to accumulate, like a snowball rolled over a field. The tradesman who buys a stock of goods at high prices invests a greater sum of money in the purchase. His estimate of profits is based upon the amount of capital employed, and the higher the nominal rate of his goods, the greater will be the scale of profits superimposed. Foreign merchants, also, always seek the highest market. When high prices prevail in this country, our ports are crowded with foreign cargoes. To prevent this influx of goods, Congress has been obliged to increase the tariff rates. Ignorance of economic law, affecting Congressmen equally with their constituents, the prayer is granted. The sole effect of a tax is to increase prices, and an advanced tariff increases the evil it was designed to remedy. The result of all this is a mania for speculation, a diminution of our productive industry, a glut of foreign goods in our market, and widespread suffering in the midst of theoretic prosperity.

This devotion to a false idea leads our workmen to retard production, under the belief that the consumption of the population is a fixed quality, and the more they minimize results, the greater the share of profit resulting to their class. At a meeting of business men, held in New York some time since, one speaker said that previous to the war he had paid $2.50 a day to bricklayers, and a day's work was laying two thousand bricks; since the war, wages had been advanced to $5 a day, and the Union had restricted the day's work to laying one thousand bricks. The result of this unwise restrictive policy, was that capitalists ceased building for the season, and the workmen had to crowd their families into the wretched tenement houses of that city for want of better accommodations.

And this was against increase of production. It is always going on. Half a century ago the cotton spinners of England destroyed all the machinery that was put up, under the belief that it would ruin their industry. Our own workmen in the present day resist the introduction of Chinese laborers, oppose with disfavor upon the extension of female labor, clamor against prison labor, and seek to limit the number of apprentices an employer may take. All this proceeds from the desire to limit production, and thus preserve an era of high prices.

If our sons shall be taught political economy among their earliest lessons in school, they will reverse the present rule; they will employ every facility to increase production, having no fears of starving to death, and no desire to limit production, and thus preserve an era of high prices. High wages will not be an object with them, but the honest performance of their duty, and a willing acquiescence with results. And they will not go to scheming, selfish and ignorant politicians to pass tariff laws, to prescribe the hours of labor, and fix the rate of wages; they will understand these matters do not belong to the domain of politics; and will agree in the belief that the former should be abolished, and the hours and remuneration of labor left to regulate themselves.

The Same Old Way.

When a Chicago man wants permission to lay a side railroad track near his place of business he goes to a friend who is a member of the Councilman at the head of the Committee on Railroads. The firm of Pond & Soper, lumber dealers, did not know this, a few months ago, and tried in vain to procure the right to lay the side track. As soon as they invested $300 the permission was granted. This is a cheap price for a Councilman, but times are hard.

Affairs in Virginia.

[Chicago Tribune Letter.]
But there is a quietly returning prosperity; the bulk of a society is settled; the State Governor has kept his pledges and rebuked class legislation. Negro suffrage has been of no injury to Virginia, because her white men are wiser, and her negroes more moderate, than elsewhere. In this State, as generally in the South, Texas excepted, immigration has amounted to little. The people born on the soil are left to administer its affairs. What Northerners and English have settled in the State have generally reinforced the prejudices of the white natives.

Adam Smith's Rules of Taxation.

1. The subjects of every State ought to contribute to the support of the Government as nearly as possible in proportion to their respective abilities; that is, in proportion to the revenue which they respectively enjoy under the protection of the State. In the observance or neglect of this maxim consists what is called equality or inequality of taxation.

2. The tax which each individual is bound to pay ought to be certain, and not arbitrary. The time of payment, the manner of payment, the quantity to be paid, ought all to be clear and plain to the contributor, and to every other person.

3. Every tax ought to be levied at the time or in the manner in which it is most likely to be convenient for the contributor to pay it.

4. Every tax ought to be so contrived as both to take out and keep out of the pockets of the people as little as possible over and above what it brings into the public treasury of the State.

STATE TEMPERANCE ALLIANCE.
Election of Officers and Adoption of Resolutions.

The seventh annual convention of the State Temperance Alliance met in session in this city, at Roberts Park Church, yesterday afternoon, about one hundred delegates being in attendance from different parts of the State. The Alliance was called to order by the Rev. Wm. Wm. Baxter, who presented a lengthy report, setting forth the work that has been accomplished in the cause of temperance during the past year, the necessity of temperance people everywhere to be faithful and inside their different political organizations to press this question with unwearied energy and perseverance. The speaker presented statistics to show that pauperism, crime and insanity increase in the same ratio as the increase of saloons and with reference to the late defeat of the Republican party in this State, he maintained that the cause of the party had failed to take hold of the temperance question. State would have gone near 50,000 than 15,000 Democratic. It is quite probable that the party which will soon assume control in this State will make a strong attempt to repeal the present temperance law, and in order to defeat such measure it behooves the advocates of temperance and sobriety to thoroughly organize for immediate work and circulate and present petitions to the Legislature asking that not only the present law should be maintained, but that such additional legislation be added as will render it more efficient to "protect the people" against the giant curse of intemperance.

The Secretary, Rev. T. A. Goodwin, presented his report, which was received and adopted, after which the following named officers were appointed and accepted by the convention:

President—William Baxter, of Richmond.

Secretary—Rev. T. A. Goodwin, of Indianapolis.

Treasurer—John W. Ray, of Indianapolis.

Board of Managers—B. M. Cobb, Huntington; William Edgerton, of Henry county; Mrs. C. Smith, Delhi; J. Bromfield, South Bend; J. L. Miller, Lafayette; W. C. DePauw, New Albany; Mrs. D. B. Harvey, Indianapolis; William Campbell, Greensburg; P. W. Payser, Franklin; S. S. Carpenter, Wabash.

At the evening session the committee on resolutions submitted the following report:

Whereas, The most thorough scientific investigation has demonstrated that alcohol is not only necessary for any purpose, and its use is by pre-mature the cause of the nation, therefore

Resolved, That the ultimate end sought is the prohibition by law of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

Resolved, That as an immediate step, we cherish the so-called "Baxter law" of the State, and we will earnestly petition the Legislature about to convene not to abrogate that law, but so to amend it as that all persons who permit to sell intoxicating liquors shall require the signature of a majority of the women over twenty-one years of age, residing in the town or township, as well as a majority of the legal voters; and in other respects strengthen and make the law more efficient.

Resolved, That we are heartily opposed to legislation in favor of selling the privilege to engage in the accursed traffic, as it creates an unjust monopoly, and the sanction of law to it, dividing the responsibility between the vender and the government.

Resolved, That the collection of money by this traffic for the support of education is repugnant to our moral sense.

Resolved, That recognizing fully the fact that our cause is and will be combated by might, determined and relentless forces, that following Divine guidance and relying on Divine aid, we will resist it forward as persistently and resolutely as it is, or shall be opposed; intensifying our opposition as the opposition intensifies.

Resolved, That a committee consisting of three persons be appointed by this convention to draft and circulate through the State a form of petition, for signatures, to be presented to the Legislature about to assemble, employing in the spirit and intent of the foregoing resolutions, such committee to consist of John W. Ray, Rev. F. C. Holliday and Aurelia Fort.

Resolved, That an Executive Committee of three persons be appointed for the purpose of presenting these petitions to the legislature, and using all other proper means to secure the objects of these resolutions, such committee to consist of the President, Secretary and Treasurer of this Alliance.

The resolutions as presented were adopted after considerable discussion, after which an adjournment was had until 9 o'clock this morning.

TO DAY'S SESSION.

The Alliance met this morning pursuant to adjournment, at which the Finance Committee submitted a report recommending that the President, Secretary and Treasurer of this Alliance be appointed a committee to raise not less than $5,000 to be expended under the direction of the executive committee in the State of Indiana during the ensuing year, which was adopted. On motion of John W. Ray it was resolved that when this Alliance adjourned its adjournment to meet on the third Tuesday of September, 1875, in annual meeting. The finance committee reported having examined the books and accounts of the President, Secretary and Treasurer, finding them correct. The following resolutions were adopted: That the warmest thanks of the Alliance of the temperance people of this State are due to Hon. Wm. Baxter, for his earnest and persevering ability and sacrifice in the advocating and carrying out of the temperance reform in this State. That the thanks of this Alliance be extended to Col. John W. Ray for the preparation of the excellent document called "Cost and Cause," and for his other labors in the cause. A resolution was also passed in reference to the death of Joseph C. Moses, of Peru, an officer of this Alliance, tendering sympathy and condolence to his bereaved family. Previous to adjournment an informal discussion arose as to the propriety of inviting Luther Benson to make any more temperance addresses under the auspices of the Alliance, and it was decided the sense of the meeting that that gentleman be given a wide berth hereafter. The Alliance then adjourned until September.

The Exposition Elephant.

This forenoon at nine o'clock the State Board of Agriculture announced a meeting at the Capitol to receive reports from Secretary Heron and Treasurer Dickson on the financial status of the last Exposition and State fair, or as the State Board has it, State Fair and Exposition, they notwithstanding the thousands of dollars guaranteed by Indianapolis citizens, still holding the Exposition, with its four weeks continuation, secondary to the one week State fair. News reporters attempted to secure in advance the report of Secretary Heron, which scatters over a multitude of pages, but the Secretary invested it with such importance, and coupled his negative with such overwhelming gravity that the reporters entering were shipped in the bus. The Finance Committee of the Board were in session throughout the forenoon, considering such bills as Major Palmer's, $630 for superintendent services, etc., but at 12 o'clock the Board was called to order by the Vice-President, and after some skirmishing adjourned until this afternoon. President Sutherland was necessarily absent, owing to the death of his wife, and it was the accepted sentiment that the Board could not proceed without his presence; hence the session this afternoon will hardly go beyond the report of the Southernland and adjourning to a date two weeks later.

It is understood that Heron's report will show a deficit, and that the guarantors will be still further bled, or else an additional loan made from the banks, with accumulating interest. Mr. Dickson's report will show the sale of 157,609 tickets, aggregating $33,463 10, and the receipts from privileges increase this sum $5,464. To this can be added a little from premium contestants, perhaps swelling the figure to $45,000. An estimate of expenses, not obtained from the Heron, shows running expenses $15,000; salaries, etc., $10,000; advertising, etc., do, with an indebtedness from last year to more than swallow what little profit there may have been on the running expenses of 1874. Some assert that the 1874 Exposition did not itself cover expenses, and that the Board is now convinced that it is a losing proposition located too far away from the city to successfully pay. Whatever there may be in all these different stories, one thing is certain—there is nothing ahead consoling to the guarantors.
